The Press-Enterprise Company Names Director of Human Resources

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (Jan. 16, 2009) -- Paul Ziembowicz, who has served as The Press-Enterprise Company's manager of Human Resources since 2007, recently was named director of Human Resources for the company.

In addition to continuing in his present role of managing the day-to-day operations of the department -- including employee relations, staffing, training and development, and employee retention -- Ziembowicz will engage with executive management to lead the strategic direction for Human Resources across the company.

Ziembowicz says his key objective as director will be to take a proactive approach to contribute to the effectiveness and efficiency of the company by translating business plans into strategic and operational plans. This includes partnering with management and employees on key initiatives and to further promote the company's high performance culture.

"We are pleased to announce Paul's appointment," said Ronald Redfern, chief executive officer and publisher of The Press-Enterprise Company. "With his proven expertise, Paul will continue to serve an important role at The Press-Enterprise Company by providing the leadership we need to meet our immediate and long-term goals."
